NEWS BY THE MAILS.

Washington News

THE MEXICAN MINISTER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—It appears that an erroneous statement is in circulation in reference to Senor Romero, the Mexican Minister, on the occasion of his New Year's visit to the executive mansion. So far from the diplomatic crops having ignored him, as was currently reported, it is now known that he not only agreeably conversed with the Ministers whose governments have not; but also with several of those whose governments have recognized Maximilian's government. The Spanish Republics, as is believed and also Prussia are included in the former class.

MEXICO.

The publication office here has just issued the correspondence of Mr. Romero, the Mexican Republican Minister, with Secretary Seward, in relation to the decree of Maximilian, ordering all Mexicans found in arms opposed to himself, to be treated as banditti and executed. Mr. Romero argues at length against the injustice and tyranny of the decree, falling as it does, he claims, upon regular officers and soldiers of the army, all classed as guerrillas by Maximilian.—"On the 13th of October last," says Mr. Romero, Generals Ortega and Salazar, and Cols. Diaz, Paracho, Villa, Gonces, Perez, Milnca and Millans, five lieutenant colonels, eight commandants, and a number of subordinate officers, were surprised and taken prisoners by the French forces in the town of Santa Anna, State of Michoacan, as appears from the official dispatch sent to the usurper, of which I enclose a copy in French.—Those generals and colonels belonged to the regular army of the Republic, were officers of education and profession, and had fought for the independence of their country from the time the French first landed in Mexico. These distinguished Mexicans were executed in accordance with the above mentioned bloody decree of the usurper of Mexico, and I have information, of the truth of which, unhappily, there is no doubt, that two generals and lieutenant colonels were barbarously sacrificed in flagrant violation of the laws of war and every principle of justice."

Mr. Seward, on the 3d of November addressed a letter to our minister at Paris, saying: "I am directed by the President to request you to ask the serious attention of the French government to the military proceedings in Mexico, by which brave Mexicans, taken captive while adhering in war to their own republican government, are denied rights which the law of nations invariably accords to prisoners of war." And on the 28th of the same month Mr. Seward addressed another letter to Mr. Bigelow, in which he says: "With reference to my dispatch of the 3d inst., it is now my painful duty to acquaint you that information has been received from the minister of the republican government of Mexico, accredited to this government, to the effect that the sanguinary policy referred to in the above named dispatch has actually been inaugurated by the execution of several distinguished officers of the Liberal forces, who had been surprised and captured by the Imperialists at Santa Anna Amatian, namely: Generals Ortega and Salazar, and Colonels Diaz, Parada, Villa, Gomez, Perez, Milchia, and Villonos; five lieutenant colonels; eight commanders, and a number of subordinate officers. It devolves upon me to instruct you again to call the serious attention of the Imperial government to this subject, and Mr. Drouyn L'huys that these reports have been received with much concern by the government of the United States.

"If, upon investigation, they should prove, as there is too strong ground for believing, that they are well founded, we cannot suffer ourselves to doubt that so far as the government of France is concerned, it can never countenance proceedings which are so repugnant to the sentiments of modern civilization and the instincts of human nature."

Mr. Bigelow, under date of Paris, November 30, writes to Mr. Seward as follows: "Sir—M. Drouyn D'Lhuys has referred to the representations I had made in regard to the shooting of the Mexican prisoners taken in war, and also to the case of Madame De Iturbide. 'Why,' he said, 'do you not go to President Juarez? We are not the government of Mexico; and you do us too much honor to treat us as such.'

"We had to go to Mexico with an army to secure important interests, but we are not responsible for Maximilian or his government. He is accountable, as to any other government, if he violated its rights, and you have the same resources that we had."

Mr. Seward, under date of Dec. 10th, informs Mr. Romero that the latter's dispatch and its accompaniments, for which he tenders his thanks, have received the consideration to which they were justly entitled by this government.

THE FREEDMEN'S BUREAU.

Senator Trumbull, just previous to the holidays, gave notice of his intention to introduce a bill, which he has since divided into two, and will submit them to the Senate to-morrow.—One of them is to enlarge the powers of the Freedmen's Bureau, and the other is to protect all persons in the United States in their civil rights and furnish the means of their vindication. The first provides that in the insurrectionary districts, where by State law or custom, any of the civil rights belonging to white persons are denied to negroes or mulattoes, or when they are subjected to different punishment than is prescribed for whites, the officers and agents of the Freedmen's Bureau shall, so long as such discrimination continues, have jurisdiction of all cases which affect such negroes or mulattoes. It also provides for punishing, by fine and imprisonment, through the courts of the Freedmen's Bureau, all persons who shall subject a negro or mulatto, in consequence of his race or color, to any other different punishment than is prescribed for white persons, or shall deny him any civil rights which belong to the white race. The judicial power exercised by the Freedmen's Bureau is to cease whenever the States where it is exercised are fully restored in all their constitutional relations to the Union. The other bill is of a permanent character, to apply to all parts of the United States. It declares that the inhabitants of every race and color, without regard to former slavery, shall have the same right to make, sue and enforce contracts; to sue; be parties; give evidence; to inherit; purchase deed, hold and convey real and personal property; to enjoy full and equal benefit of all laws, and the security of person and property; all be subject to like punishment, pains and penalties, any law, regulation or custom to the contrary notwithstanding. Other provisions of the bill make it a criminal offence for any person under color of law, or custom, to deprive of any of his equal civil rights and immunities, gives the United States Courts exclusive jurisdiction of the cases of all persons thus discriminated against and of all offences committed against the prisoners of the act; makes it the duty of the judicial authorities of the United States, aided, if necessary, by the military forces, to excute the same and provides all the machinery for making the bill effective. Nearly all the provisions of the old fugitive slave act are incorporated into this bill, and the statute originally framed to keep men in slavery is now revised to secure their freedom. The same penalties once imposed for aiding men to escape to freedom are to be imposed for trying to keep in slavery those who have just issued therefrom.

IMPORTANT SALE.

ON WEDNESDAY, THE 24TH OF JANUARY, 1866, I shall offer for sale, my plantation in Bertie County, lying on the Roanoke River, three miles from Hill's Ferry on said river, and six from the village of Woodville in Bertie County, containing 1000 acres, more or less; 500 acres cleared and well adapted to the growth of cotton, corn, wheat, &c.

There is a very fine opportunity to make a large cotton crop on the plantation the next year, as there is compost enough ready made, to manure nearly 100 acres. The plantation made in 1861, 43,000 pounds of lint cotton, and 4,000 bushels of corn; and, with proper management, will do great deal better for the next year, as the most of the cotton land has had rest for the past two years. A very great advantage which this farm has, is its convenience to transportation, being only one mile to a good landing on the river, where there is a regular line of steamers to Norfolk weekly. In addition to the above, this is the only river farm in this portion of the county that has fire wood enough, conveniently for use; there is an abundance here, and timber of almost every kind, cypress, oak, hickory, ashe gum, &c. Lumber dealers would do well to examine the land before the day of sale.

There are about 400 or 500 acres on this tract uncleared, which affords a fine range for hogs, and a free access to numberless acres of uncultivated lands renders it very profitable for the raising of cattle, colts, &c.

The improvements consist of a gin house and cotton screw, overseer's house, cabins enough for 25 or 30 laborers, corn barns, &c. At the same time and place, I shall sell 200 or 300 barrells of corn, fodder, mules, horses, hogs, farming utensils, &c

Terms for the land: one third cash, the balance in two equal instalments, payable respectively in 12 and 18 months, and title withheld until payments made For the perishable property, cash.

For any farther particulars, address the subscriber at Enfield, Halifax county, N. C.

Code for the Freedmen.

The State Convention, at its first session, provided for the appointment of a Commission by the Provisional Governor, to prepare a code for the government and regulation of the freedmen, to be submitted to the Legislature for its revision and adoption. Messrs. B. F. Moore, R. S. Donnell and Wm. S. Mason, were appointed, and we presume at an early day after the reassembling of the Legislature, they will be prepared to submit the code to that body.

It is a matter which will require the deliberate and careful consideration of that body, not only because of the intrinsic importance of doing full justice to that race, but because of its immediate bearing upon the future relations of the State to the Federal Union.

It is perfectly manifest, that while there are ultraists at the North, who above all things desire to keep up the agitation of the negro question, as a means of keeping out the Southern States from all participation in the legislation of the country, until their venom or their cupidity is fully satisfied, yet the great body of the Republican party, and we may say the masses of the Northern people, will demand such a settlement of the relations of the blacks in the Southern States as will secure beyond question all future agitation upon the question of their permanent and unequivocal freedom.

Hence any code which may be adopted by the Southern States, will be closely criticised and scanned, in order to detect objectionable features for the purpose of future agitation.

North Carolina can give no higher proof of her disposition to fix definitely the freedom of the blacks upon an immoveable foundation, than she has already done. The acts of her Convention and Legislature, touching the question of African slavery, are as unalterable as the laws of the Medes and Persians. Our people never incorporate into the laws of the State any article or principle, originating in Punic faith. What they thus swear to, they will stand by. We presume the same feeling and purpose predominate all over the South. Why the North is so jealous or so suspicious in regard to the future action of the Southern States on this subject, can only be accounted for upon the presumption that they judge the South purely by themselves. The bad faith of the Northern States in regard to the fugitive slave law is patent to the world, and was one of the causes which combined to bring on the late ruinous war. The South will perform her vows.

But however little respect is due to the agitators and the enemies of the South at the North, the sentiments of the great body of the people deserve consideration. Our code, therefore, should provide for the freedmen whatever humanity, justice and right require, adapted to their new condition and their future improvement and happiness. The full protection of their liberty, their persons and property, their ability to make contracts, to sue and be sued, the enforcement of the marriage relation, their exemption from militia service, requiring them to pay taxes, to work on the roads, laws for their paupers and vagrants, all these are subjects which must be embraced in the code; in fine every thing which concerns their interest and responsibilities as freemen.

The question of suffrage for the blacks, if ever mooted, cannot now be considered with any hope of its being sanctioned by the people. In a word, the people are willing to confer upon them whatever is essential to their freedom and the enjoyment of the privileges of civil law and right, except such as will recognize them, in any sense, the social and political equals of the whites.

The question of negro testimony, however, cannot be kept out of the discussions upon the code of the freedmen. We observe that there is a good deal of tendency in the South to favor it. The Legislatures of Alabama and Mississippi, we believe, have incorporated it in the laws passed by those States. There is much that is repulsive in this measure to the feelings of our people. Few are found to favor it at all, and yet if we can judge correctly of the temper of the North and the views of the President, we are inclined to fear, that nothing short of this will satisfy the government.

The rules of evidence which obtain in our Courts, do not put every witness upon the same social position. Every person who testifies in Court is liable to have his testimony challenged. No jury is bound to believe every white man's testimony; indeed the jury weighs the testimony of every man, what it is worth. In this view of the case, colored testimony would be weighed always, and put down at its value.

A Ray of Hope.

We are not prepared to say exactly what significance is to be attached to the telegraphic announcement, that a deputation from the Congressional re-construction Committee of fifteen was appointed to wait on the President on Saturday last, and that they had a long interview accordingly. It may mean nothing; but still, in view of the recent special message of the President, and for other reasons, we are inclined to the opinion that it is auspicious of good. One paragraph of that message, it will be remembered, bore specifically upon the immediate matter with which the Committee is charged. This was a delicate and pointed reminder to Congress of the doctrine of the Declaration of Independence, that taxation and representation go together, and was in the followings words:

"From all the information in my possession, and from that which I have recently derived from the most reliable authority, I am induced to cherish the belief, that sectional animosity is surely and rapidly merging itself into a spirit of nationality, and that representation, connected with a properly adjusted system of taxation, will result in a harmonious restoration of the relation of the States to the National Union."

Accompanying this message was the report of Gen. Grant upon the results of his tour of observation, in which the same opinion was stated in language as emphatic as it was consistent with his peculiar office to employ.

During the recess of Congress, the indications have multiplied, in the most indisputable manner, that the President is firmly fixed in his determination to defy, and crush, if need be, the radicals, and to bring about the thorough pacification of the country by the complete restoration of the Union.

The members of Congress have returned to their seats fully apprised of all the unmistakable evidences of this latter fact. The committee accordingly meets on the second day of the adjourned session, and immediately a representation is delegated to invite a conference with the President, and the conference is held.—Heretofore, it has been understood, from the nature of the elements composing it, and distinctly announced, indeed, that that Committee, in defiance of the President, was to be the great controlling agency of the Government in respect to the Southern restoration policy; that every resolution offered upon the subject was to be referred to it, there to lie, and die, and rot, so long as the satanic spirit of Thad. Stevens should animate it. That it has ceased to animate it, or, at least, that its baleful influence is on the wane, we may reasonably hope from the present action of the Committee.

We may not doubt what ANDREW JOHNSON said to the Committee. Whenever the fierce billows of hate and fanaticism have been about to roll over the ill-fated South in a resistless tide, he, almost solitary and alone, has fearlessly thrown himself in front of the rushing waves and hurled them back. He has taken his ground and he will maintain it. He has the sagacity to see what is required, and he is calmly and heroically pursuing the path of duty.

We are hopeful, therefore, we say, of an early deliverance. To suppose that a wild crusade, led by such bigots and madmen as Sumner and Stevens, against a policy in itself wise, rational and just, and inaugurated and sustained by two such men as President Johnson and Gen. Grant, will succeed, is to suppose that the American people are capable of the commission of any folly or crime.

Wilmington Journal.

We are pleased to learn that our friend, Maj. J. A. Engelhard, has become editor and joint proprietor of this popular journal. We congratulate Mr. Price upon securing the valuable services of Mr. Engelhard. He is an excellent writer, a man of capital business habits, and comes up to our standard of an energetic working man. The readers of the Journal will be gratified by the arrangement, and will not fail to profit by the labors of Mr. Engelhard, so soon as his duties as Clerk of the Senate will allow him to devote his attention entirely to the paper. In the mean time, the editorial department will be placed in fully competent hands.

Revenue Ordinance, &c.

A correspondent requests us to publish the Revenue ordinance of the Convention and the Stay Law. We will do this at an early day.

He asks also,

"Are the Clerks and Sheriffs who qualified during the sitting of the provisional Courts, and before the Legislature convened or before the legislative act which authorized their qualification, properly in office?"

The election of the Clerks and Sheriffs, by the people, under the authority of the Convention, confers upon them the office, which any apparent informality in the officers who swore them and took their bonds, does not vitiate. At the time, the Provisional Courts certainly had the power to qualify them.

HON. KENNETH RAYNER.—We are gratified to learn that this distinguished gentleman, who has been quite ill, for many weeks past, is so far convalescent, that he will be able to take his seat in the House of Commons on the 18th instant.

The Evil of the Day.

We are unaware of any single instance in history, in which men, banded together for purposes of wicked agitation and the subversion of law and order, have openly avowed, by their party nomenclature, the mischeivous objects of their organization. Even the anarchists of the French Revolution, God and Government defying as they were, masked their iniquities under the specious garb of Liberty. It is reserved for our own times to witness the shameless spectacle of a party openly boasting of their nefarious schemes and flaunting them in their popular designation. This party admit themselves to be Radicals, and confess their object to be the uprooting of an entire social and moral system, at the sacrifice of justice, right and law.

But this is not the evil of which we would speak, though directly involved in it.

Our readers have, doubtless, seen the recent farewell address of Gov. Andrew, of Massachusetts,—who combines, by the way, the malignity of a demon with all the affected sanctity of New England puritanism,—in which he calls for additional guarantees from the South, to be secured by Constitutional Amendment. And scarcely a day passes in Congress that does not witness the introduction of propositions looking to this same idea of Constitutional Amendment. The taste of the blood of the Constitution, in the adoption of the late amendment abolishing slavery, seems to have acted upon the radical politicians in the same way that the taste of human blood does upon the ferocious appetite of the tiger.

And this is the great evil to which we allude: That these men would bring the nation to such a pitch of demoralization as no longer to respect the ordinary forms of law; to trust nothing but what is embraced within the provisions of that most sacred of all covenants—a Constitution. The time was, when the man, who should have dared to approach the great work of our fathers with other than reverential awe, would have been deemed guilty of sacrilege, and when the ordinary forms of legislation were considered sufficiently binding.

When the nation does reach the point of demoralization, of which we are speaking, then it will have nearly attained the condition in which the moral sense is obliterated, and no obligations, however solemn, will be able to bind it.

Circular of the Public Treasurer.

The following circular will explain at a word the duty of the Provisional Sheriffs. The Circular confirms the view we gave of the matter in our last issue.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,
TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
Raleigh, Jan. 8th, 1866.

To the Sheriffs of North Carolina:

A report has gained extensive circulation that the collection of the whole or the part of the tax levied by the Convention has been conjoined by military command.

After correspondence by Gov. Worth with the President and Maj. Gen. T. H. Ruger, commanding the Department of North Carolina, all interference with such collection by military officers has been ordered by Gen. Ruger to be discontinued.

Parties desiring to contest the validity of the Convention ordinance must appeal to the civil courts.

The Sheriffs will proceed to collect the taxes under the ordinance with as little delay as possible.

KEMP P. BATTLE,
Public Treasurer.

The Cotton Question.

We had occasion, the other day, to remark that the world is now nearer to a cotton famine than it has been.

The Manchester Cotton Supply Association appear to have come to the same conclusion.—In their late address to cotton-growers, they say:

At the close of the American war, a general expectation prevailed that large quantities of cotton would at once be obtained from the Southern States, which, together with the fall in price that then took place, was calculated to check production in other countries. These anticipated supplies have not been received, and, as regards the future, it appears that for years to come, owing to the altered condition of the United States, the abolition of slavery and the adoption of free labor, there will be less cotton grown there than formerly, and much less than will be required.

The increased consumption in America must diminish the exports from that country, whilst still larger demands than at present may be expected both in England and on the continent.—It is manifest, therefore, that all the cotton which can be grown in every direction will be readily taken, and that prices highly remunerative to the cultivators may be expected. Deeply impressed with this conviction, the Cotton Supply Association deems the present a fitting opportunity to appeal specially to those countries which have come forward in the absence of the American supply, and to recommend them to put forth renewed and more earnest efforts, both to increase the production of cotton and to improve its quality."

The Manchester mill-owners may well take the alarm at the present doubtful aspect of the cotton supply from the United States. They seem to have been advised of the fact that the labor question of the South is one of doubtful and distant solution. They appeal therefore to other sources of supply, and urge the necessity of increased attention to the culture of cotton and the improvement of its quality in those regions from which they have derived supplies during the last four years.

These sources of supply are chiefly India, Brazil, and Egypt. For various reasons these resources cannot be relied upon for so large a quantity of cotton, even of inferior quality to our cotton, as they have heretofore furnished.

The prospect of the crop in the Southern States for the coming year is improving in some places, and particularly in the vicinity of Memphis and Little Rock. It is bad enough in other places, where the freedmen are shy and reluctant to make engagements, from the apprehension of being entrapped into some new form of bondage.

If the world is to be supplied with cheap and good cotton; if the Southern States are ever to be restored to their original prosperity; if the national finances are to be brought into a sound condition, then this labor question must be so settled that the freedmen will be readily induced to resume their labor in the cotton and the corn-fields of the land owners and capitalists. The United States Government cannot do this. It is for the people of the South, and for them alone, to put the freedmen on such a footing, as members of the community, as will encourage them to engage, voluntarily and cheerfully, in the industrial pursuits for which they are well fitted by nature and habit.—National Intelligencer.

DAILY SENTINEL.

Tuesday, January 9, 1866.

CITY AND STATE ITEMS.

OLD SIXES.—Messrs. Jno. G. Williams & Co., brokers and bankers, effected a sale on yesterday, at public auction, of four old State bonds of one thousand dollars with coupons attached, for $890 each, and for one one thousand dollar registered bond $750. They were sold on twelve months credit. These were the bonds advertised by Dr. Miller in the Sentinel.

PROVOKING.—We are without any Northern mails since Friday night last. The fact will account for the necessary meagreness of news in to-day's issue.

BURGLARY.—The store of Mr. D. C. Murray, on Fayetteville Street, was forcibly entered on Saturday night, and goods to a considerable amount abstracted. We have not heard that there is any clue to the perpetrators. The police are, doubtless, on the alert.

We call attention, in our advertising columns, to

The Card of W. D. Haywood, Esq., announcing himself as a candidate for the Mayoralty.

Situation as Teacher, wanted by Miss M. N., of Henderson, Granville co.

Card of A. A. Willard, Dealer in Groceries and Merchandize, Forwarding and Commission Merchant, Wilmington, N. C. We have known Mr. W. for years. He is a capital business man and may be relied upon fully.

Wests, Bradley & Cary's announcement of "Bradley's celebrated Patent Duplex Elliptic or Double Steel Spring Skirts"—full of attractiveness, we doubt not, for all our lady readers.

Notice from the Principal of the Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind, relative to securing the services of Vice-Principal.

NEWBERN.—Prominent citizens of Newbern have obligated themselves to pay certain amounts for the maintenance of a police force in that town, during the time which must intervene between this and the organizing of a Board of City Commissioners.

ROCKINGHAM CO.—The U. S. Commissioner for the collection of the direct tax will open an office in Wentworth on the 15th. inst.

WILMINGTON.—The Hon. Geo. Davis, who has just been released from Fort La Fayette reached his home in Wilmington on Saturday. He was enthusiastically received by the citizens. Gov. Vance is the guest of Col. James G. Burr, and has likewise been greeted with every demonstration of respect and affection.

General News.

A letter has been received from the city of Mexico, stating that ex-Gov. Allen is desirous of returning home.

Great alarm prevails at Madrid, in consequence of apprehended revolutionary movements. Queen Isabella—who, by the way is in declining health—has lodged large sums of money in France and England.

The Governor of Alabama, in his inaugural address, says that from thirty-five to forty thousand citizens of that State perished in the war, which caused also a loss of wealth equal to five hundred millions of dollars.

It is held by a Provisional Judge of a District Court that negroes were not free previous to the surrender of Kirby Smith, on the ground that no law or proclamation took effect in Texas until enforced.

It is reported that there is a building in Jersey City filled with arms and ammunition for the Fenians, whose troubles have not yet been healed.

President Johnson's Message was received in Paris with feelings of relief and gratification, especially that part of it relative to foreign affairs.

The road from the city of Mexico to Vera Cruz is lined on each side with corpses. Every guerilla is hung as soon as caught; and the mere fact of a man's having a suspicious appearance in sufficient to cause his summary execution.

The Toronto Leader is publishing a series of medical articles, written by Dr. Blackburn, the person charged with attempting to introduce yellow fever and small pox among the United States during the war.

The Paris correspondent of an English paper states that the object of General Schofield's mission to Europe is to purchase the Grecian island of Spezzia, upon which to locate American dockyards and naval depots.

Edwin Booth's reception at the Winter Garden, New York, on Thursday night, was the grandest triumph of his dramatic career. The house was crowded, and it was half an hour before the storm of applause subsided and he was permitted to proceed.

Governor Pierpont has returned from Washington. In a letter to Senator Gilmer, he says he had an interview with the Secretary of the Treasury, at Washington, on the subject of the postponement of the collection of the direct taxes now due from the State. The Secretary has directed that no sales be made for non-payment of taxes, but he has no authority to stop the commissioners from collecting the same.

Direct Importation.

By reference to our advertising columns, it will be seen that the enterprising firm of O. G. Parsley & Co., of our city, offer the very large assorted cargo of the "Sylvia," to be sold at auction, and also, two cargoes of Coffee and Molasses, soon to arrive.

We hail with pleasure this evidence, upon the part of our merchants, to carry into execution what has so long been [illegible] to be a very great desideratum to our comparative commercial prosperity. It has always seemed singular that the products of the more Southern latitudes should be carried within sight of our port, to Northern cities, to retrace, in part, its footsteps back to us, enhanced in value, not only by the additional expense necessarily incurred, but by a handsome sum paid to the Northern merchant.

We have ever advocated direct importation to Southern ports, and the reasons which impelled us to this opinion, in the past, induce us, under present circumstances, to be more thoroughly convinced of its necessity. The South is too much impoverished to be paying unnecessary toll to Northern wealth, and while husbanding its resources, it should encourage native industry and enterprise.—Wil. Journal.

For the Sentinel.

Brass.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—I would sing of brass: not brass metaphorical or figurative, but of brass literal, of brass "an alloy of copper and zinc, of a yellow color." The dictionaries give as the second meaning of brass, impudence, and until very recently, this seemed to be the only kind of the article much in vogue. We have had much gilding of this figurative kind, and it is still in high repute; it was with this sort of brass that our belles and beaux, our wits and politicians, were wont to adorn themselves while the "alloy of copper and zinc" was confined to door knobs and candlesticks, to andirons and tenders. But this is a matter of fact age; allegories, with all the garniture of poetic fancy, have vanished, and solid realities take their place. Language remains unchanged, but its terms are applicable only in their primary sense. We can still speak of brazen belles, but we do not mean forward, frisky, and vain girls, in gossamer dresses with still lighter brains; but we now use the words to designate fair daughters of Eve shining with metalliferous splendors, laden down with literal brass, plated over with the "alloy of zinc and copper, of a yellow color." And we can truly say, also, that men of brass remain, and in fact multiply; but for the counterfeit wit and the impudent assumption with which they were accustomed to supply the place of sense and worth, they have adopted the easier method of wearing plated harness, and carrying about an ass's load of pinch beck.

Truly it would seem that there is something new under the sun—that the love of gold, which has distinguished man from the beginning, has disappeared at last through the power of a cheaper and nobler passion.

Our higher civilization disdains the vulgar love of "barbaric gold and pearl"; nor will we have any native gilt, in its unsophisticated, elementary form as it comes from mother earth, but we will shine in the hybrds, born of art, and such as the heathen cannot dig from the hills of California, nor wash from the sands of Africa, nor melt from the ores of Peru.

And we will make it too precious for the purchase even of the Oriental blazing in diamonds; and none but the sons and daughters of the glorious Occident, quilted over with innumerable and immeasurable greenbacks, shall indulge in this solid luxury of a sublimated people. A pound of gold, worth $240, shall buy but one-fourth of an ounce of brass; and it shall take three pounds of brass to make a gentleman respectable, and five of this "alloy of copper and zinc," and fresh every month, to admit a lady into fashionable circles. As for children, they must sport twice their weight of this precious pinchbeck; and nurses hereafter will be prized according to their extent and power of brawn and muscle.

But, Messrs. Editors, as I sit in the assembly of the notables, and feast upon the yellow glories of this age of universal jaundice, a natural association of common ideas causes shadows of bronze to darken the brassy hues that gild the hall.

A few months ago, a General of the South, more intent on the battles of brute force than those fought by weapons not carnal, and which are vastly more important, called upon the good people of the land to give up those bells that called to prayer, and to the gospel of peace, for the manufacture of implements of death.

The people, full of zeal, cheerfully submitted to the self-denial—had the demand been for the copper stills wherewith were manufactured a different kind of consolation, it might have met with a less patriotic response. But people are ever ready to make great sacrifices in their religious privileges; they could do without the Churches, but could not so well give up the brandy.

So the bells that had so often woke the still sabbath morn with their cheerful sounds, inviting a dying world to come and drink freely of the waters of life and peace, were converted into cannon, and at Chickamauga, and other bloody fields, belched forth sulphur and fire and death. They passed from side to side of the hostile forces, according to the varying fortunes of war, and the debris of the bell metal from the foundries where they were cast, and possibly some of the guns themselves, now unfit for use, have gone to the fabricators of tinsel cord, of buttons, and stars, and other brazen adornments of beauty and manhood.

And those, on that fair damsel, are blazing ornaments from the old bells that whilome sounded their sweet and welcome calls to the people of God to come to the house of prayer.

From this blessed vocation that "alloy of copper and zinc" went to deal out wounds and death on the field of "confused noise, and garments rolled in blood;" and on that now silent scene lie the unmarked bones of that lady's kindred.

But the brass, ever since it left the old Church belfry, is dedicated to slaughter; it sent an iron messenger to tear the body of the gallant brother; it has made the father poor and desperate by the exchange of all his hard-earned greenbacks for those little stars that twinkle on that beauteous brow, and at every glance of their yellow lustre they are turning the greener heads of admirers, weak of understanding.

Messrs. Editors, the ancients made their brass into a Colossus which was one of the seven wonders of the world; we wiser moderns have invented an eighth, instar omnium, greater than all the seven curiosities of dull antiquity.

With less than the seven thousandth part of the metal in the yellow giant that bestrode the harbor of Rhodes, we have brought the genius, wealth and industry of a whole continent under the power of brass.

He, of Rhodes, was but a similitude of our Colossus; the ships had to sail between the legs of the ancient brazen wonder, a type of that grand consummation by which a few pounds of the alloy of copper and zinc have subsidized the resources of a great nation!

Horace, with a high estimate of his own works, said, "exegi monumentum ære perennius," "I have built a monument more lasting than brass;" poor benighted heathen! he never dreamed of the value of this yellow alloy, devoted in his day to statues and pillars.

Ovid sung of wonderful metamorphoses: had his muse risen to the then unimagined and unimaginable absorption of the gold of a thousand mines and the souls of a nation's youth, by a few old door knobs beaten into gew-gaws, his genius would have left a prouder memorial of its wisdom and far-sightedness than that of his boasting cotemporary.

Diana, of the Ephesians, was great, but greater brass who can value?

QUILL.

HOPEFUL.—We have learned from what we consider very reliable authority, that the young Mr. Seward, Assistant Secretary of State, in a private conversation with a gentleman in Washington, very recently, said that while the administration members of Congress did not want to precipitate the readmission of the seceded States, yet their policy on the reassembling of Congress would be to admit a portion of the members elect from the South—enough to entitle the States to resume their Federal relations—rejecting some of the more objectionable ones. Whether this will be done or not, of course we cannot tell; but it is reasonable to suppose, however, that the Sewards will advise such a course, and if they should we may reasonably expect such a result.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7, 1866.

The Congressional Committee on reconstruction held a meeting to-day, and appointed Senators Fessenden and Johnson and Representative Washburne, (of Ill.,) to wait on the President, with whom they had an hour's interview.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.

SENATE.—No business of importance transacted to-day. Session lasted only half an hour.

HOUSE.—Mr. Williams offered a resolution, which was passed, that, in order to maintain the national authority and protect loyal citizens of the seceding States, the military authority should not be withdrawn from the States, until Congress shall deem their presence unnecessary.

Mr. Latham, of West Virginia, made a speech, arguing that the rebellion was limited by State lines, that its authority was extended only so far as its power could carry it. He therefore protested against the dogma that the States were out of the Union. He would require representatives from the South to take such oaths as those of a loyal constituency.

Shelaberry, of Ohio, argued that the Southern States, by disobedience to established law, placed themselves outside of the Union.

Gen. Howard, of Freedmen's Bureau, reported to the House that, in consequence of instructions being received to restore abandoned property to owners, when pardoned, that tenure upon it was rendered so uncertain that the steps taken to allot it to freedmen were countermanded. The revenue resulting therefrom had been very materially curtailed.

The Joint Committee to prepare testimonial of respect to memory of Mr. Lincoln, have requested Geo. Bancroft to deliver the address.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.

The Secretary of the Treasury to-day communicated to Congress a statement concerning Internal Revenue in 3rd District of Georgia.—He earnestly requested a modification of the test oath, setting forth the great difficulty experienced, in consequence of its provisions, of securing proper assistance to transact the business of the Department in that section.

If You are threatened with Pneumonia, read the following from Capt. W. P. Davis, of Petersburg, Virginia:

"Sympathy for the suffering prompts me to certify that my servant man was suffering in the last stage of Pneumonia throwing up matter and blood in large quantities; his case was considered hopeless, so much so, that there was no medical prescription used for his recovery; I regarded him as good as dead. Hearing of the great cures made by the SOUTHERN HEPATIC PILLS, I thought that I would try an experiment on him; without any hope of success however, I gave the Pills in large doses; in a short time, to my great surprise, there was a change for the better. I continued giving them to him until he became a perfectly sound man. He is now attending to his work with as much strength and vigor as he ever did. With his case, and what I have seen and heard of the good effect of these Pills, I do most earnestly recommend them as the best family medicine I have ever seen or used."

DAILY SENTINEL

WM. E. PELL, Proprietor.

Daniel Bryan's Oath.

DANIEL BRYAN had been a lawyer of eminence, but had fallen, through intoxication, to beggary and a dying condition. Bryan had married in his better days the sister of Moses Felton.

At length all hopes were given up. Week after week would the fallen man lie drunk on the floor, and not a day of real sobriety marked his course. I doubt if such another case was known. He was too low for conviviality, for those whom he would have associated with would not drink with him.

All alone in his office and chamber, he still continued to drink, and ereh his very life seemed the offspring of his jug.

In early spring Moses Felton had a call to go to Ohio. Before he set out he visited his sister. He offered to take her with him, but she would not go.

"But why stay here?" urged the brother.—"You are fading away, and disease is upon you. Why should you live with such a brute?"

"Hush, Moses, speak not," answered the wife, keeping back her tears. "I will not leave him now, but he will soon leave me. He can not live much longer."

At that moment Daniel entered the apartment. He looked like a wanderer from the tomb. He had his hat on and his jug in his hand. "Ah, Moses, how are ye?" he gasped, for he could not speak plainly.

The visitor looked at him a few moments in silence. Then, as his features assumed a cold, stern expression, he said in a strongly emphasized tone:

"Daniel Bryan, I have been your best friend but one. My sister is an angel, though matched with a demon. I have loved you, Daniel, as I never loved man before; you were generous, noble and kind; but I hate you now, for you are a perfect devil incarnate. Look at that woman. She is my sister—she might now live with me in comfort, only that she will not do it while you are alive; when you die she will come to me. Thus do I pray that God will soon give her joys to my keeping. Now, Daniel, I do sincerely hope that the first intelligence that reaches me from my native place after I shall have reached my new home may be—THAT—YOU—ARE DEAD!"

"Stop, Moses; I can reform yet."

"You can not. It is beyond your power.—You have had inducements enough to have reformed half the sinners of creation, and you are lower than ever before. Go and die, sir, as soon as you can, for the moment that sees you thus will not find me among the mourners."

Bryan's eyes flashed, and he drew himself proudly up. "Go," he said, in the tone of the old sarcasm. "Go to Ohio, and I'll send you news. Go, sir, and watch the post. I will yet make you take back your words."

"Never, Daniel Bryan, never!"

"You shall! I swear it!"

With these words Daniel Bryan hurled the jug into the fire-place, and while yet a thousand fragments were flying over the floor, he strode from the house.

Mary sank fainting on the floor. Moses bore her to the bed, and then, having called in a neighbor, he hurried away, for the stage was waiting.

For a month Daniel moved over the bank of the grave, but he did not die.

"One gill of brandy will save you," said the doctor, who saw that the abrupt removal of stimulants from a system that for long years had almost subsisted on nothing else was nearly sure to prove fatal. "You can surely take a gill and not take any more."—

"Aye," gasped the poor man, "take a gill and break my oath. Moses Felton shall never hear that brandy and rum killed me! If the want of it can kill me, then let me die; but I won't die—I'll live till Moses Felton shall eat his words."

He did live. An iron will conquered the messenger death sent—Daniel Bryan lived. For one month he could not even walk without help. Mary helped him.

A year passed away, and Moses Felton returned to Vermont. He entered the court-house at Burlington, and Daniel Bryan was on the floor pleading for a young man who had been indicted for forgery. Felton started in surprise. Never before had such torrents of eloquence poured from his lips. The case was given to jury, and the youth was acquitted. The successful counsel turned from the court-room and met Moses Felton.

They shook hands, but did not speak. When they reached a spot where none others could hear them, Bryan stopped.

"Moses," he said, "do you remember the words you spoke to me a year ago?"

"I do, Daniel."

"Will you now take them back—unsay them now and forever?"

"Yes, with all my heart."

"Then I am in part repaid."

"And what must be the remainder of payment?" asked Moses.

"I must die an honest, unperjured man! The oath that has bound me thus far was made for life."

That evening Mary Bryan was among the happiest of the happy.—Christian Witness.

The Puritans.

A writer in the Christian Witness, reviewing the different religious societies of the world, gives the following fearful picture of the religious creed and practice of the sect of Puritans:

The Puritans, who left England, settled at Plymouth and founded in New England, professed to have fled from persecution, and sought a place to worship God according to the dictates and rights of conscience, and to Christianize the Indian. They were not settled before they robbed the Indian, enslaved their women and children, sold them into foreign bondage, and visited the most inhuman and self-degrading cruelties upon all classes with whom they came in contact. They plundered the towns of the natives. They employed and paid assassins. Bribes were paid for the assassination of chiefs. They burned hundreds of the natives alive. They roasted at the stake women and children, and burned them in heaps. Their ablest and favorite divines declared that the burning of four hundred Indians at once, mostly women and children, seemed a sweet savor to God, while they admitted it was awful to see their blood running and quenching the violence of the burning wood, and smell the stench.—Mather himself boasted that they "had that day sent four hundred souls to hell."

They turned upon the Quakers. They imposed heavy fines for hearing them speak. They passed laws against all other sects. They flogged women and children. They put them in prison and whipped them daily. They cut off their ears. They bored their tongues with red-hot irons. They hung men, women and children as witches, and continued this for fifty years. The colonies of New England were threatened with absolute extermination by their fanaticism. They exiled Baptists and Catholics. They drove women and helpless children under the severest penalties, to seek protection among the savages, where they were all murdered because they differed with them on mere theological and metaphysical divinity. Mather, the clergy, Governors and Legislatures, all combined and vied with each other in radical fury and hate. As late as 1740 they enacted the most barbarous laws against sectarianism, and enforced the Saybrook platform.

And this was all done after the geniuses above named had written. Chaucer had three centuries before written the Canterbury Tales. Spencer had given the world the Fairy Queen and drawn the character of Arthur. A man whose calling to please the world, in an age of almost universal corruption, had made Portia to plead like an angel, had drawn the character of Duncan, Miranda and Antonia. Massinger had written, and Milton had sung the sublimest epic in the world. Bacon had written Novum Organum. Magna Charta had been a law over four hundred years. The Petition of Rights had been obtained fifty years before, and Locke had written on the "toleration in exile."

Truth Stranger than Fiction.

The past history of the families of Louis Napoleon and the Sultan of Turkey is full of interesting and marvelous incidents, some of which are probably not generally known to our readers.

These two monarchs, a few years ago, so cordially united in the struggle to maintain the integrity of the Ottoman, Empire are both descendants of American ladies, the one a grandson and the other a great grandson. The ladies were born in the same neighborhood, on the Island of Martinique, one of the West Indies. They were of French origin, and companions and intimate friends in childhood and youth. They were Josephine de Tascher and Miss S—. The history of Josephine is generally known. She went to France, and was married to M. de Beauharnais, by whom she had one son, Eugene, and a daughter, Hortense. Some time after the death of Beauharnais, Josephine was married to Napoleon Bonaparte, and became Empress of France. Her daughter, Hortense, was married to Louis Bonaparte, then King of Holland, and the present Emperor of France is her son by this marriage.

But now for the romance of the affair: Josephine's bosom friend quitted the island of Martinique some time before she did. But the vessel that was carrying her to France was attacked and taken by Algerine corsairs, and the crew and passengers made prisoners, but the corsair ship was, in turn, attacked and pillaged by Tunis pirates, and Miss S. was carried by them to Constantinople and offered for sale as a slave. Her extraordinary beauty and accomplishments found her a purchaser in the Sultan himself, and she soon became the chief lady in his seraglio, and Sultana of Turkey. Mahmoud II. was her son; Abdul Medjid was the son of Mahmoud; and the present Sultan Abdul Aziz Khan is the grandson of Mahmoud.

Thus, the two sovereigns, who occupy so large a space in the world's eye, are descended from two American Creole girls, who were playmates in their youth, and as remarkable for their beauty and excellent dispositions as for their varied and singular fortunes. Both those women, in the height of their power, remembered the friends of their youth, and provided munificently for their welfare. Many of the relatives of the Sultaness left the island of Martinique and settled at Constantinople, where their descendants still reside and enjoy the favor of the Sultan.

The Sultaness died in 1811, the Empress Josephine in 1814.

How to Breathe.

There is one rule to be observed in taking exercise by walking—the very best form in which it can be taken by the young and able-bodied of all ages—and that is, never to allow the action of respiration to be carried on through the mouth. The nasal passages are clearly the medium through which respiration was, by our Creator, designed to be carried on. "God breathed into man's nostrils the breath of life," previous to his becoming a living creature.—The difference in the exhaustion of strength by a long walk with the mouth firmly closed, and respiration carried on through the nostrils instead of through the mouth, is inconceivable to to those who have never tried the experiment. Indeed this mischievous and really unnatural habit of carrying on the work of inspiration and expiration through the mouth, instead of through the nasal passages, is the true origin of almost all the diseases of the throat and lungs, as bronchitis, congestion, asthma, and even consumption itself. That excessive perspiration, to which some individuals are so liable in their sleep, which is so weakening to the body, is solely the effect of such persons sleeping with their mouths unclosed. And the same unpleasant and exhaustive results arise to the animal system from walking with the mouth open, instead of, when not engaged in conversation, preserving the lips in a state of firm, but quiet compression. As the heat and velocity of the blood through the lungs depend almost entirely upon the quantity of the atmospheric air inhaled with each inspiration, and it is unavoidable that it should be taken in, in volume, by the mouth, while it can only be supplied in moderate quantities, and just in sufficient proportion to serve the purpose of a healthy respiratory action, while supplied through the nostrils, it is clear that the body must be much lighter and cooler, and the breathing much freer and easier, when the latter course rather than the former is the one adopted. Children ought never to be allowed to stand or walk with their mouths open; for, besides the vacant appearance it gives to the countenance, it is the certain precursor of coughs, colds, and sore throats.—Methodist.
